WILL NOW DIE HAPPY.

George Cruce, who has presided as clerk, sheriff, judge or general gaysticatus at many elections in old Crittenden county, will now surrender his checks and shake off this mortal coil as happy as a big sunflower at any time after July 1st, at which time he will be judge of the primary, when all democratic candidates will be given big majorities. To preside as judge on such a happy occasion has been George's highest ambition for several years and now that he will attain it he is being congratulated. He will celebrate in fitting style July 4th with fire-crackers, canons, sky rockets, anvils and roman candles.

Will Call On The Editors.

The annual meeting of the Kentucky Press Association will be held this week at Cerulean Springs. Newspaper men from every part of the state will be present, and the convention promises to be one of the most delightful and interesting they have ever held.

Of course, Hopkinsville will not pass up the fine opportunity that is afforded by the re-union to show the editors a substantial sample of its progressiveness and hospitality.

Thursday, June 22, will be Hopkinsville day at Cerulean. Leaving here at 11:30 o'clock over the I. C. a large contingent of the business men and a number of the fair sex will go to Cerulean and pay a pleasant visit to journalists. The Third regiment band (of Hopkinsville) will accompany the party and give a charming concert in the hotel pavilion. The callers will take along an abundant quantity of the fine cigars (made in Hopkinsville) for the men, and delicious boxes of candy (out of banks will reach $233,270,000).

Hopkinsville) and beautiful flowers (grown in Hopkinsville) for the ladies. Oratory (the choice Hopkinsville brand) will be uncorked from time to time, and the editors will be told how very glad everybody is that they are meeting in the Hopkinsville region. Hopkinsville merchants are contributing generously to the entertainment fund.

The party will return home at 6:20. A special railroad rate has been applied for and all citizens who wish to make the trip are invited to be at the train next Thursday morning.

When the press convention met at Cerulean three years ago the newspaper men spent a day in Hopkinsville and they were so favorably impressed that to this good time they have never failed to say a good word for the town and its people whenever the chance has been given them. The arrangement of the program prevents a similar trip this time, so the mountain will go to Mahomet, instead of following the former plan, and the novelty of the visit will make it all the more attractive.

About two hundred editors and members of their families will be at Cerulean Springs this week.—Hopkinsville Kentuckian

Country's Largest Bank in Chicago

Chicago, June 20.—Chicago now has the largest bank in the United States. The Continental and Commercial banks, which consolidated during the winter, today took over the Hibernian Banking Association, giving total assets of $265,000,000. The total deposits of the consolidated banks will reach $233,270,000.

Addams a Winner Says Judge Blue.

Hon. John W. Blue, of Marion, who was elected judge of the Crittenden County Court last fall, in that great republican stronghold, was here last Monday and he says that two months ago McCreary had things going his own way in Crittenden; but he says it is a different proposition altogether now; that the people are awakening to their sense of duty and that if there is anything in talk, that Mr. Addams by July 1, will sweep the county by a large majority; he says he never saw such wonderful change in sentiment in a race in his life; and so it is from every county heard from. It is the duty of every man who desires success in November that he not only go to the polls July 1st and cast his vote for Addams, but that he take his neighbors, boys and all friends along and induce them all to vote for Addams and against Machine rule, by Beckham, Lawrence and Haley and other small fry who are prostituting democracy by machine methods again in Kentucky. Above all, do not forget to get out for Ollie James' sake also and vote for him and take everybody and the family dog along to vote for him.—Livingston Banner.

The wedding was quiet, as none of the friends of the bridegroom knew of it, though the bride told her mother, Mrs. C. Dause, and several of her intimate friends.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Tobacco Tidings.

By James N. Banks.

The five committeemen of the district board of the Stemming Association were in session in this city yesterday.

Each and every one of the five came prepared to report on the condition of and the prospect of the tobacco crop in the five counties for the current year.

Tobacco Prospects in Crittenden.

In all the five counties present prospects for a near approach to a normal crop are better in the county of Crittenden than in any other county embraced by the Stemming District. Last night Mr. Dean, a practical, successful farmer, and close observer withal, in answer to my inquiries described conditions in Crittenden substantially as follows:

"Last week, on the 5th, a good soaking rain fell in the county of Crittenden. That was on Monday, and our farmers were setting out tobacco up to and inclusive of Thursday, so good was the season. What with that planting made the 21st and 22d of May, I estimate that 75 per cent. of a normal crop is now growing in the county. The pooling will I think, result about like this—15 or 20 per cent. of the crop will be dumped and eighty per cent. will be pooled."

Pertinent right here to point out that the normal production for Henderson county is about twelve or thirteen million pounds, or, say, ten million more than Crittenden.

Prospects for Union County.

From Mr. Oglesby I learn that the drought has worked serious and lasting injury to prospects for tobacco in Union county. Rains have been mere showers in the most favored sections of the county. Twenty-five per cent. say of the crop was transplanted of which, owing to light season, hot sun and drying winds, five per cent. has perished. Plants on beds in the bottoms are blooming and plants on hill beds are turning yellow and perishing. Much of the acreage intended for tobacco has been and will be planted in corn. "If everything from now on is propitious we may get in Union county 50 per cent. of a normal crop this year," said Mr. Oglesby.

Prospects for Henderson County.

Committeeman George Campbell reported Tuesday morning.

"Tell me," I said, "just how you sum up the outlook for a tobacco crop in Henderson county in this year of 1911."

"It may shed light on the subject," answered Mr. Campbell, "to give you my own experience, which is similar to that of a great majority of the tobacco growers in Dixie, Corydon and Cairo sections of Henderson county. First and last, I pitched 15 acres of tobacco on light seasons. I estimate that ten acres of that has perished. Of my land intended for tobacco fifteen acres have been planted in corn. If seasons hereafter prove exceptionally favorable, we may produce 50 per cent. of an average crop. Not more for the plants are overgrown, have perished and are perishing. Here it is the 13th day of June and still as dry as a bone, and a big shortage of plants right now."

"It is," concluded Mr. Campbell, "the gloomiest prospect since 1874."

In Hopkins County.

Committeeman W. H. Parker, of Hopkins, also reported this morning.

"Tell me about Hopkins county and the outlook for tobacco this year," I suggested.

"We have been more favored by good weather than other counties. Good seasons on the 21st and 22d of May and 5th of June, came to us, and 75 per cent. of the crop was pitched, and while some of that, of course, has perished, under favorable conditions for the future Hopkins ought to produce this year 75 per cent. of a normal crop. You must understand," concluded Mr. Parker,

"what I have said more strictly applies to the southern half of the county where the heaviest rains fell. The seasons were light in the northern half of the county and in consequence the stand for tobacco is not so good. And yet we should get 75 per cent. of a crop with favorable conditions from now on."

In Webster County.

Committeeman Baker of Webster county, was the last to arrive, but came in time to get himself in this report.

"You saw that Secretary Thompson said in the Henderson papers that under the most favorable conditions Webster county could not produce over 50 per cent. of an average crop this year. What is your estimate?" I asked.

"I don't think it possible now for Webster county to reach 50 per cent. of a crop, even under the most favorable conditions," was the prompt answer of Mr. Baker.

And then he was summoned to preside over a meeting of the district board.

The District Board Names Election Day.

The board passed resolutions to the following effect: Recommending that county committees name the same day in the several counties, namely, the fourth Saturday in July, wherein to elect committeemen in each magisterial district of the several counties—but in making said recommendation the board clearly recognizes the constitutional right of each county committee to name the day for said election in the month of July.

The board further unanimously resolved that meetings should be held in the several magisterial districts in the several counties to decide whether the pool should hold or be declared off, on the fourth Saturday in August.

McClures on 24th.

President W. M. King writes that big preparations are being made for the barbecue at McClures, June 24th.

Manager Elliott is booked to speak at 10 o'clock that day; and the good farmers of Union are anxious to hear him. He will go down in an automobile.

May Sell S. P. Church.

The elders of the Southern Presbyterian church of this city have under consideration an offer from a committee of the Episcopalian church for the purchase of the edifice on Market street. The structure is a handsome one, but has not been used for religious worship for some years, on account of the numerical weakness of its membership, though at one time one of the strongest denominations in the city.

For All Bowel Troubles

Use Dr. Bell's Anti-Pain. Relief is almost instantaneous. Is also good externally for all kinds of pains. Sold everywhere.

Accident Ends Life of Bride

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 20.—Mrs. T. B. Cavender, of Denver, a bride of five days, received injuries from which she died without regaining consciousness, and nine others were seriously hurt when the observation car on the short line train from Cripple Creek left the rails while rounding a curve in North Cheyenne canyon, nine miles west of this city, and turned completely over. Mrs. Cavender, accompanied by her husband, was on her honeymoon. The husband was only slightly injured.

The "observation" was the only car to leave the track. There were 35 passengers on the train.

Deer Steals Milk From

Farmer's Cow

Bedford, Pa., June 21.—For some days Hart Bush, a farmer at Oppenheimer, this county, had found no milk from his cow at milking time. The cow was kept in a field near the home and it was thought that the calf had stolen it, so it was locked up in the barn. Yesterday morning Mrs. Bush thought she saw in the early dawn the calf with the cow and started to drive it off when a large deer lightly leaped a fence and made off.

$5 Bill Fatal Meal For Sheep

Evansville, Ind., June 24.—Grant Allison, a well known farmer living near here, while shearing his sheep, was handed a five dollar note by one of his neighbors who owed him a debt. He placed the money in a tin can nearby and one of his sheep ate it. Allison killed the sheep and got his money. Now he and his family are eating fresh mutton three times a day.

A frequent desire to pass urine? If so, Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you—Druggist Price 50 cents.—Williams Mfg. Co., Cleveland, Ohio. Sold only by J. H. Orme, Marion Ky.

Woman Shoots Man

Dixon, Ky., June 21.—Guy Williams, negro went to the house of Mary Green, where a festivity was in progress, and it is alleged, threatened to shoot up the place. Mary Green was alert to the possibilities of the moment however, and promptly pulled a revolver and popped Williams, who now is in a critical condition. As the woman shot in self defense, she has not been arrested.

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance, that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little one's stomach.

Any mother who will take the trouble of sending her name and address can obtain a free sample bottle of a remedy that many other mothers are using and now paying for. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppermint, and the offer of a free trial bottle is open to any mother who has not yet used it. Having used it and convinced yourself that it is what you want, you can obtain it at the future of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as so many others are doing, the free sample being simply to convince you of its merits. It is the best way to begin on it. Mrs. L. Davis of Marion Street, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Belford, 1710 Coke street, Louisville, Ky., both started with a free sample and now they write that they have never been without a bottle in the house since.

It is undoubtedly a great family remedy as it is adapted to all ages, being mild and pleasant to take and yet thoroughly effective.

It is especially the ideal remedy for children and women and old folks, who need something pure, mild and natural. It has the advantage of being a thorough laxative and yet containing no purgatives. Use it for the most stubborn constipation, indigestion, liver trouble, sick headache, sour stomach and such complaints with a guarantee that it will cure.

been for four weeks.

About one third of the tobacco has been set.

Corn is not all planted. The ground is too dry and hard to break. Gardens are drying up for the want of rain.

Early potatoes are not half a yield.

Wheat is being cut and it seems to be very good.

Elihu Millikan has been under the care of Dr. Bailey for more than a week. He is some better at this writing.

Mrs. Dan Riley and daughter, Miss Elsie, attended the debate at Tabb mines Wednesday.

J. G. Thurman and wife were called to the Commodore mines Sunday to see their daughter, who was critically ill.

Dr. Bailey has purchased a new automobile and when he is sent for, he is there now.

Mrs. Rose Mayes was accompanied to Evansville Wednesday by Ed Young. She has gone to have her eyes treated.

Miss Leta Flanary, of Princeton, is the guest of Mrs. Rose Mayes this week.

Miss Lora Johnson is the guest of friends and relatives in Marion this week.

Jim Brown and his son, Hugh, attended church at Fredonia Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Henson and Mrs. Jeffords spent Tuesday at Tom Brasher's in Lyon county.

Allen Riley has returned from Paducah college and is now pulling the line over old Beck's back.

Most of our young folks attended the dedication at Cookseyville Sunday.

Will Stephenson, the monument man, was here last week doing some work in the country.

D. B. Wiggin, of Dogwood, was in our midst Saturday. He has a pony he would like to trade for a mare and colt.

We attended the Children's Day exercises at Fredonia Sunday. It has never been our pleasure to attend a meeting of this kind that was as full of interest as this one. The children had a splendid program and they rendered it without a single mistake. The C. P. church is still alive at Fredonia yet, and F. S. Loyd says "it will never die."

Aunt Polk Langsdon is still sick at her sister's, Mrs. Tom Stone. Dr. Bailey, of Fredonia, was called to see her Thursday.

Most all of our people attended the Craymer-Taylor debate Thursday.

An officer who will use his influence and vote to defeat a proposition which he knows is for the best interest for the people whom he represents, just because he is not personally in favor of the proposition himself, is not worthy the support of the people. He should be put down and out as quick as possible, for he is an unsafe man for public business.

The wonderful curative power of Hays' Specific in the treatment of chronic disease, as attested by the testimonies of our citizens, and the growing demand for the medicine warrant us in recommending it and guaranteeing satisfaction to our customers who use it for rheumatism, Indigestion, Eczema, Constipation, Malaria and Chills, and will refund your money if not satisfied. It is a Spring Tonic. Try it. We keep a general line of drugs and sundries.—Haynes & Taylor.

The Adams wave for governor is gathering strength as it moves along and it now looks like all opposition will disappear by July 1. It is thought now that McCleary's name will not even appear on the ballot. The committee should not accept an entrance fee from McCleary as it would be simply a confidence to do so.—Livingston Banner.

AUSPICIOUS

Beginning Of Work On Marion's Twenty-five Thousand Dollar Church.

Arrangements for the laying of the corner stone of the New Methodist church are now practically completed, and will be carried out according to the programme printed in our issue of today.

Recognizing the publicity of this event the Banks and Business houses of the city have decided to close their places of business during the ceremony of laying the stone, viz: from 3:15 to 3:45 p. m., in order that their clerks, as well as the general public may have ample opportunity to enjoy the proceedings.

The procession will start promptly at 3 o'clock from the Masonic Temple, and the actual ceremony will begin as nearly as possible at 3:20. After the stone is laid the procession will then reform and proceed without delay to the Main Street Presbyterian church, where the principal exercises will be gone through.

The speakers from abroad will arrive Saturday morning on the 11 o'clock train, and will be met by the Reception Committee, consisting of Messrs. J. H. Orme, T. J. Yandell, S. M. Jenkins and J. C. Bourland, representing the City; T. A. Frazier, J. B. Kevil, J. L. Travis and J. G. Gilbert, representing the Masonic Fraternity; and C. S. Nunn, H. A. Haynes, J. G. Rochester and Jno. A. Moore representing the Methodist Church. The guests will be driven over our city and then taken to the homes of their hosts and hostesses prior to the commencement of the exercises of the day.

The visitors will be entertained as follows:—Rev. Dr. C. C. Woods, by Judge L. H. James; Dr. Blackmer and Jno. B. Thompson, Esq., by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Orme; Jesse Whitworth, Esq., and W. E. Mathews, Esq., by Judge and Mrs. J. W. Blue; Jno. L. Wheat, Esq., by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Nunn.

In addition to the musical programme already announced, Miss Anna Haynes will sing a special piece; and the same lady will also sing at the service on Sunday morning in the Methodist church, at which the Rev. Dr. C. C. Woods, of St. Louis, will preach.

Given fine weather there will doubtless be a large concourse of people present on this unique occasion.

STEAMER BURNS BUT NO LIVES ARE LOST

John L. Lowery Goes Down Near Smithland, Ky.—Flames Light River For Miles.

Paducah, Ky., June 15—The steamer John L. Lowery, with fifty passengers aboard, burned to the water's edge off Hamletburg, Ill., at 1:30 o'clock this morning. There was no loss of life.

The place where the accident occurred is opposite Smithland, Ky., and rescue parties put out from the Kentucky side to aid in the work of saving life.

How the flames started has not been learned, but a faulty boiler is believed to have been responsible. The steamer started burning near the Illinois bank and the glare lighted up the water front on both sides of the river. The whistles of distress disturbed the stillness of the night and were heard for many miles.

The wildest of scenes were enacted on board the vessel when the flame were first discovered. Women shrieked and became hysterical, while many men frantic with fear, fought their way to the rails. All landed safe, however.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of Execution No. 1499 directed to me, which issued from the Clerk's office of the Crittenden Circuit Court in favor of J. Gans & Co. against Jas. L. Rankin for the sum of $299 Dollars and 62 cents, I, or one of my Deputies, will, on Monday the 26th day of June 1911, between the hours of 10 o'clock, A. M. and 2 o'clock, P. M. at the Court House door in Crittenden county Ky., expose to PUBLIC SALE to the highest bidder, the following property (or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy Plaintiff's debt, interest and costs), to wit: 106 3-4 acres of land, lying on the Caldwell Spring branch, and bounded on the South by Mrs. Rosa Mapes on the north by Ed Harping, on the South by Clint Brasher, and on the east by C. Rankin, for further description.

ion see Deed Book 14 Page 150 Crittenden County Clerk's Office. Levied upon as the property of J. L. Rankin.

TERMS: Sale will be made on a credit of six months, bond with approved security required of the purchaser, with interest from date at the rate of 6 percent. per annum, and having the force and effect of a judgement.

Witness my hand, this 5 day of June 1911.

New Hopkinsville, Ky., High School, built under the administration of Barksdale Hamlett, as Superintendent of the Hopkinsville public schools.

BARKSDALE HAMLETT

EDUCATOR CANDIDATE FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

Democratic Party Will Demand as Its Candidate a Man Who is a Practical and Experienced Educator.

The first law of a democracy is the equalization of opportunity, which means the equitable distribution of intelligence through an adequate provision of educational equipment.

There can appear no virtue in the cry of a "Square Deal" so long as there exists a monopoly of intelligence, in a state where society is composed of individuals equally endowed by nature yet to the great masses of whom all the light of human achievement and the social heritage of truth are denied.

Through a permanently organized campaign for educational improvement, readjusted ideals must be converted into practical realities. Thus will the latent energies of society be set free and opportunity will indeed knock at the door of every home in Kentucky.

His Platform.

I stand specifically for: A school free and accessible to every child in every rural district in Kentucky.

BARKSDALE HAMLETT.

The improvement, sanitation and equipment of our rural schools, in accordance with the best modern standards.

Minimum seven months terms in every district.

A rational and effective compulsory attendance.

Practical course of study; agricultural and the domestic and mechanical arts and sciences.

Good roads and consolidation where practical.

Teachers of scholarship, character and personality.

County high schools, accessibly located in every county.

Improved facilities for the county superintendent's office.

Liberal enlargement and maintenance of our normal schools and state university as component parts of our public school system.

Readjustment of our system of finance to effect larger results on a more economic basis.

Personal leadership in the field on the part of the state superintendent.

Success Comes Only at End of Effort.

The subject of this sketch is a man of strong individuality, keen mentality, and a broad humanitarian spirit, whose interest in his fellow men is sincere, while his work is always actuated by a desire to advance the cause of education.

He worked in the tobacco patch for the means with which to educate himself, and succeeded in terms, good roads and improved facilities for our schools in every respect.—(Mayfield Messenger.)

Strong Acquisition to the State Ticket.

Prof. Hamlett is in the foremost rank of Kentucky's educators and is in every way thoroughly qualified for the honor he seeks. We predict a successful candidacy for him and believe he will be a strong acquisition to the next state ticket.—(Madisonville News.)

Solid Backing of Home People.

Hamlett stands at the very top among the educators of our state. His friends predict with all candor that he will go into the fight with the solid backing not only of his home county, but the entire second congressional district.—(Daily Leader, Fulton.)

An Ideal Superintendent.

Barksdale Hamlett, of Hopkinsville, is the most advanced, intelligent and capable man in the state for superintendent of public instruction. He knows the needs of the state in all educational matters and would make an ideal state superintendent of public instruction.—(H. A. Summers in The Elizabethtown Journal.)

gressive city in the country. He is a friend to the common schools of the state, is a clean, sound and energetic teacher who has all the elements of success in his make-up and is a man in every way capable of making an officer of whom the whole state would be justly proud.

It is hoped that Mr. Hamlett will have no opposition before the Democratic primary, for he is so thoroughly Democratic and clean in his views, so well equipped from all angles, that antagonism would be almost unfathomable.

Mr. Hamlett has given a good account of himself, and his work at Hopkinsville is a monument to his ability as a school worker and organizer. He has made more than good there and can make good at the head of Kentucky's school affairs. If you want to know what Barksdale Hamlett stands for, just follow carefully the creed of the man as promulgated by himself.—(Henderson Journal.)

In the Lead.

Barksdale Hamlett, of Hopkinsville, continues in the lead for the Democratic nomination for Superintendent of Schools. His superior qualifications for the office give him a decided advantage over both his opponents, who are not active schoolmen. The people of the State are awakening to the fact that to elect a lawyer to the agricultural department or a farmer to the superintendency of schools would be sheer folly, and they are lining up in this section at least for Mr. Hamlett mainly because he is an eminent, active educator and has made a success in his chosen line of work.—The Somerset Journal.

bill. If it should be one-third farther it would be better and quicker gone over.

The valleys, hollows and branch bottoms are mirey. Now how do you aim to prove that the valleys and hollows are softer than the hills? How do you get from one hill to the other? Do you not have to cross the hollows or dreading valleys? You can't fly from one hill to the next! Now is not it a fact and indisputable that you drive off of one hill that is so muddy your team can hardly pull a wagon down hill and after you get into the dreaded valley you find the road better, easier pulled, the mud not half as deep as on the hill. This is the case nine out of ten times where the valley road is ditched or graded enough to keep the branch out of the road bed. Now if you can go across the hollow and the road is better why should you mire and have all the bad luck that is known in the whole catalogue of disasters if the road was run up or down the hollow and around the hill?

Stock Law.

Is needed and must be had before any changes can be made without more expense than the county can afford. Suppose in going around a hill the road will cut off one or two or five acres of land off neighbor Jones' farm as the road was on the line. Neighbor Smith could attach this small amount to his field to advantage, knowing that Mr. Jones can't afford to fence and keep up such a small tract. Mr. Smith says he will wait his time and buy the land for one-half its real value. Mr. Jones knowing human nature in advance won't give or sell the right of way around the hill unless he gets the value of the land cut off. Now if he knew he did not have to keep it fenced two or three acres would be ball team.

do for meadow, tobacco patch, late corn, etc., he would not care whether he sold it or not. How would a stock law hurt Crittenden county. Let everybody investigate it. If you live near a good outside range where there's 4 or 500. A free pasture vote against the stock law. If you do not and get no benefit from free pasture you had better vote for it. Unless you want to pay tribute to the Wire Trust. Three barbed wires makes a good horse and cattle fence; ten a fence off for hogs with woven wire would in most cases be range enough for hogs and would save 50 per cent, where you have to make a hog proof fence all around the farm. The poor widow and her cow, orphan children and no milk, deprived of her free pasture—good argument for the Wire Trust. It won't stand the test where there is no outside pasture nor where there is. A cow outside won't come up and soon goes dry. Where there is nothing to eat she would starve. A stock law is what we need.

Attended Church In A Balloon.

Topsfield, Mass., June 20.—The balloon as a means of conveyance to church was utilized Sunday by Charles J. Glidden and J. L. Van Valkenburg, in a journey of twenty miles from Lowell to this town. The aeronauts made an early ascension from Lowell, promising friends to land near a church and attend services. After floating before a west wind for an hour and a half, two church spires noted below.

The balloon was brought down and struck ground 300 feet from the Methodist Episcopal church of Topsfield. The aeronauts waited until the hour of services and then joined the congregation. The pastor in his address referred to the fact that two of the congregation had dropped into the service from the skies.

Get The Best

For skin troubles, sores, ulcers, eczema, chaps, black heads, pimples and all eruptions. Use Dr. Bell's Antiseptic Salve and you get the best. We guarantee it. 15 cents a box everywhere.

Fits Ollie James' Shoes.

Col. George Landram, lawyer, statesman and editor, of Smithland, was in Murray Monday on legal business. Mr. Landram is known as the "handless man" accident having deprived him of one arm and the other hand except one finger. However, what he lacks in his hands is made up in his brains, and he is one of the strongest characters in the State. He is a forceful and brilliant writer and speaker and able exponent of issues that the masses stand for. He is spoken of as a candidate for Congress, and if his fellow-townsman, Jim Grayot, does not enter the race, he will probably enter the race. —Calloway County Gazette.

CHAPTER XVII.

CAVANAGH'S LAST VIGIL BEGINS.

In his solitary ride upward and homeward, the hunter searched his heart and found it bitter and dismal. Love had interceded with duty, and pride had claimed and defeated love. His path, no longer clear and definite, loosed some dimly, but in vague, obscure understandings. His world had suddenly grown gray. He had no trade, no business, no special skill save in the ways of the mountaineer, and to return to his ancestral home in England at the moment seemed a woeful confession of failure.

It was again dusk as he rode up to his own hitching post and slipped from the saddle.

Wetherford came out, indicating by his manner that he had recovered his confidence once more. "How did you find things in the valley?" he inquired as they walked away toward the corral.

"Bad," responded the ranger.

"In what way?"

"The chief has been dismissed, and all the rascals are chuckling with glee. I've resigned from the service."

Wetherford was astounded. "What for?"

"I will not serve under any other chief. The best thing for you to do is to go out on that uniform you can get to the train with me."

"Did you see Lize and my girl?"

"No; I only remained in town a minute. It was too hot for me. I'm done with it. Wetherford, I'm going back to civilization. No more wild west for me." The bitterness of his voice touched the older man's heart, but he considered it merely a mood.

"Don't lose your nerve. ~~Meet~~ this ends the reign of terror."

"Nothing will end the moral shiftlessness of this country but the death of the freebooter. That job was done by men who hated the dagoes—hated 'em because they were rival claimants for the range. It's nonsense to attempt to fasten it on men like Nell Ballard. The men who did that piece of work are well known stock owners."

"I reckon that's so."

"Well, now, who's going to convict them? I can't do it. I'm going to pull out as soon as I can put my books in shape, and you'd better go too."

They were standing at the gate of the corral, and the roar of the mountain stream enveloped them in a cloud of sound.

Wetherford spoke slowly: "I hate to lose my girl now that I've seen her, but I guess you're right. And Lize, poor old critter! It's a shame the way I've quenched her life, and I'd give my right arm to be where I was twelve years ago, but with a price on my head and old age coming on I don't see myself ever again getting up to par. It's a losing game for me now."

There was resignation as well as despair in his voice, and Cavanagh felt it, but he said: "There's one other question that may come up for decision. If that Basque died of smallpox you may possibly take it."

"I've figured on that, but it will take a day or two to show on me. I don't feel any ache in my bones yet. If I do come down you'll be up away from me. You've got to live and take care of Virginia."

"She should never have returned to this accursed country," Cavanagh harshly replied, starting back toward the cabin.

The constable, smoking his pipe beside the fireplace, did not present an anxious face. On the contrary, he seemed plumply content as he replied to the ranger's greeting. He represented very well the type of officer which these disorderly communities produce. Brave and tireless when working along the line of his prejudices, he could be most laxly inefficient when his duties cut across his own or his neighbor's interests. Being a caterpillar by training, he was glad of the red herring which the Texas officer had trailed across the line of his pursuit.

This attitude still further inflamed Cavanagh's indignant hate of the country. The theory which the deputy developed was transparent folly. "It was just a case of plain robbery," he argued. "One of them dagoes had money, and Nell Ballard and that man Edwards just naturally followed him and killed the whole bunch and scooted. That's my guess."

An hour later, the sound of a horse's hoofs on the bridge gave warning of a visitor, and as Cavanagh went to the door Gregg rode up, seeking particulars as to the death of the herder and the whereabouts of the sheep.

The ranger was not in a mood to invite the sheepman in, and, besides, he perceived the danger to which Wetherford was exposed; therefore his answers were short. Gregg, on his part, did not appear anxious to enter.

"What happened to that old hobo I sent up?" he asked.

Cavanagh briefly retold his story, and at the end of it Gregg grunted. "You say you burned the tent and all the bedding?"

"Every thread of it. It wasn't safe to leave it."

"What ailed the man?"

"I don't know, but it looked and smelled like smallpox."

ed, her eyes filled with hot tears. "Ross came to town and went away back to his cabin without coming to see me."

"Are you sure he's been here?"

"Yes. He came in with some letters at the post office and stopped and said, 'Good evening.' Then while I was gone he got his appointment and went over to see Lee."

Lee struggled to a sitting position.

"There's something about Ross Cavanagh which was the only thing good about him. You'd be surprised how he'd do it. You'd be surprised how some order that energized him right back to the world."

"But if he had really earned his right to be a ranger he would have had a good record before he got a bad name. But he didn't. He went away without a word."

The deputy rose with a spring.

"Smallpox! You didn't handle the census?"

Cavanagh did not spare him. "Somebody had to lend a hand. I couldn't see him die there alone, and he had to be buried, so I did the job."

Gregg receded a step or two, but the deputy stood staring, the implication of all this stinking deep. "Were you wearing the same clothes you've got on?"

"Yes, but I used a slicker while working around the body."

"Good king!" The sweat broke out on the man's face. "You ought to be arrested."

Ross took a step toward him. "I'm on your service."

"Keep off!" shouted the sheriff.

Ross smiled, then became very serious. "I took every precaution, Mr. Deputy. I destroyed everything that could possibly carry the disease. I burned every utensil, including the saddle—everything but the man's horse and his dog."

The officer caught up his hat and coat and started for the door. "It's me for the open air," said he.

As the men withdrew Ross followed them and, standing in his door, delivered his final volley. "If this state does not punish those fiends every decent man should emigrate out of it, turning the land over to the wolves, the wildcats and other beasts of prey."

Gregg as he retreated called back: "That's all right, Mr. Ranger, but you'd better keep to the hills for a few weeks. The settlers down below won't enjoy having a man with smallpox chassaying around town. They might rope and tie you."

Wetherford looked at him with steady eyes, into which a keen light leaped. "Don't you intend to marry me?"

Ross turned away. "No; I don't mean it is impossible."

"Why not? Don't tell me you're already married?" He said this with menacing tone.

"No; I'm not married, but—" He stopped without making his meaning plain. "I'm going to leave the country and—"

Wetherford caught him up. "I reckon I understand what you mean. You consider Lize and me undesirable parents—not just the kind you'd cut out of the herd of your own free will. Well, that's all right. I don't blame you so far as I'm concerned. But you can get me—consider me a dead one. I'll never bother her nor you."

Cavanagh threw out an impatient hand. "It is impossible," he protested. "It's better for her and better for me that I should do so. I'm going back to my own people."

Wetherford was thoroughly roused now. Some part of his old time fire seemed to return to him. He rose from his chair and approached the ranger firmly. "I've seen you act like a man, Ross Cavanagh. You've been a good partner these last few days—a son couldn't have treated me better—and I hate to think ill of you. But my girl loves you—I could see that. I could see her lean to you."

Ross said slowly: "It will be hard for you to understand when I tell you that I care a great deal for your daughter, but a man like me—an Englishman—cannot marry, or he ought not to marry—for himself alone. There are so many others to consider—his friends, his sisters—"

Wetherford dropped his hand. "I can see!" His tone was despairing. "When I was young we married the girls we loved in defiance of everything. But you are not that kind. You may be right. I'm nothing but a debilitated old cowpancher branded by the state—a man who threw away his chance—but I can tell you straight I've learned that nothing but the love of a woman counts."

In the meantime Lee Virginia waited with increasing impatience for Ross Cavanagh's return, expecting each noon to see him appear at the door. But when three days' passed without word or sign from him her uneasiness deepened into alarm. The whole town was profoundly excited over the murder, that she knew, and she began to fear that some of the ranger's enemies had worked their evil will upon him.

With this vague fear in her heart, she went forth into the street to inquire. One of the first men she met was Sifton, who was sitting, as usual, outside the livery barn door, smiling, inefficient, content. Of him she asked, "Have you seen Mr. Cavanagh?"

"Yes," he answered. "I saw him yesterday, just after dinner, down at the postoffice. He was writing a letter at the desk. Almost immediately afterward he mounted and rode away. He was much cut up over his chief's dismissal."

"Why has he not written to me?" she asked him, "and why should he have gone away without a word of greeting, explanation or goodby?" It would have taken but a moment's time to call at the door.

The more she dwelt upon this neglect the more significant it became. After the tender look in his eyes, after the ardent clasp of his hand, the thought that he could be so indifferent when he went, and, besides, Ross might return while she was away. "No; not today," she replied sadly, but her voice was gentler than it had ever been to Lize.

With childish frankness she went to Lize and told her what she had learned.

beef to Lize.

The young fellow was moved to explain his position to Lize. "You don't think much of me, and I don't blame you. I haven't been much use so far, but I'm going to reform. If I had a gift like Lee Virginia to live up to I'd make great citizen. I don't try to arrest up against Cavanagh. I'm ready to pass that by. And as for this other business—the free range war in which the old man is turned up—it want you to know that I'm against it. Dad always lets us be short; that's what makes him so hot. But he's a high-jinx a frosty old hand. He knows he's got no more signs to the government than anybody else, but he's going to get ahead of the cattlemen if he can."

"Does he know who burned them sheep herders?"

"Of course he knows, but that isn't going to say so. You see, that old Basque who was killed was a monopolist too. He went after that grass without asking anybody's leave. Moreover, he belonged to that Mexican-dago outfit that everybody hates. The old man isn't crying over that job; it's money in his pocket. All the same, it's too good a chance to put the books into the cattlemen; hence his offering a reward, and it looks as if something would really be done this time. They say Nell Ballard was mixed up in it and that old guy that showed me the sheep. But I don't take much stock in that. Whoever did it was paid by the cattlemen, sure thing." The young fellow's tone and bearing made a favorable impression upon Lize. She had never seen this side of him, for the reason that he had hitherto treated her as a bartender. She was acute enough to understand that her social status had changed along with her release from the cash register, and she was slightly more reconciled, although she could not see her way to providing a living for herself and Lee. For all these reasons she was unwontedly civil to Joe and sent him away highly elated with the success of his interview.

"I'm going to let him take us up to Sulphur," she said to Lee. "I want to go to town."

Lee was silent, but a keen pang ran through her heart, for she perceived in this remark by her mother a tacit acknowledgment of Ross Cavanagh's desertion of them both. His invitation to them to come and camp with him was only a polite momentary impulse. "I'm ready to go," she announced at last. "I'm tired of this place. Let us go tomorrow."

SHE BURIED HER FACE IN THE COVETLET, sign after promising to come." She buried her face in the coverlet of her mother's bed and wept in childlike grief and despair.

Liz was forced to acknowledge that the ranger's action was inexplicable, but she did her best to make light of it. "He may have hurried to town on some errand and hadn't a moment to spare. These are exciting days for him, remember. He'll be in tomorrow."

With a faint hope of this the girl rose and went about her daily tasks, though the day passed and another without word or sign of the recreant lover, and each day brought a deeper sense of loss, but her pride would not permit her to show her grief.

Young Gregg, without knowing in the least the cause of her troubled face, took this occasion to offer comfort. His manner toward her had changed since she no longer had part in the management of the eating house, and for that reason she did not repulse him as sharply as she had been wont to do. He really, bore Cavanagh no ill will and was, indeed, shrewd enough to understand that Lee admired the ranger and that his own courtship was rather hopeless. Nevertheless he persisted, his respect for her growing as he found her steadfast in her refusal to permit any familiarity.

"See here, Miss Virginia," he cried as she was passing him in the hall. "I can see you're worried about Lize—I mean your mother—and if I can be of any use I hope you'll call on me." As she thanked him without enthusiasm he added, "How is she tonight?" "I think she's better." "Can I see her?" His tone was so earnest that the girl was moved to say, "I'll ask her." "I wish you would. I want to say something to her."

Liz's voice reached where they stood. "Come in, Joe; the door's open."

He accepted her invitation rather awkwardly, but his face was impulsive as he looked down upon her.

"Well, how about it?" she asked.

"What's doing in the town?"

"Not much of anything except talk. The whole country is buzzing over this dismissal of the chief forester."

"They'd better be doing something about that murder."

"They are. They're going up there in streams to see where the work was done. The coroner's inquest was held yesterday." He grinned. "Parties came to their death by persons unknown."

Liz scowled. "It's a wonder they don't charge it up to Ross Cavanagh or some other ranger."

"That would be a little too raw, even for this country. They're all feeling gay over this change in the forestry head. But, see here, don't you want to get out for a ride? I've got my new machine out here. It rides like silk."

"I reckon a hearse is about my kind," she replied darkly. "If you could take me up to Cavanagh's cabin I'd go," she added. "I want to see him."

"I can take you part way," he instantly declared. "But you'll have to ride a horse the last ten miles."

"Couldn't do it, Joe," she sighed. "These last few days I've been about as boneless as an eel. Funny the way a fellow keeps going when he's got something to do that has to be done. I'll tell you what, if you want to take me and Lee up to Sulphur I'll go you."

"Sure thing. What day?"

"Not for a day or two. I'm not quite up to it just now, but by Saturday I'll be saddlewise again."

Joe turned joyously to Lee. "That will be great! Won't you come out for a spin this minute?"

For a moment Lee was tempted. Anything to get away from this horrible little den and the people who infested it was her feeling, but she distrusted Gregg, and she knew that every eye in the town would be upon her if she went, and, besides, Ross might return while she was away. "No; not today," she replied sadly, but her voice was gentler than it had ever

FIRE DISCLOSES WEALTH IN CHURCH STEEPLE

Fighters of Blaze in Newport, Ky., Find $1,000 In Cash, $1,800 of Silver Cutlery and Jewelry.

Newport, Ky., June 19.—One thousand dollars in cash and approximately $1,800 in solid silver cutlery were found late this afternoon in the steeple of Corpus Christi church. When that structure was found ablaze.

Fireman Sam Purcell climbed into the steeple to use a fire extinguisher on the blaze. He succeeded in putting out the fire, and later began an examination of the damage done. He found a sack of coins, the cutlery, two gold watches and a necklace hidden in one corner of the interior. Later he reported the find to the Rev. Father Mathias Lieck, pastor of the church.

Father Lieck said that he could not account for the presence there of the treasure, and that an examination will be made. It is supposed that somebody stole valuables and hid them there.
